Frog Bump Games

How to play: The game is for two players. Each player needs ten markers. Twenty markers in all of two colors are used per game.

When it is your turn, roll the number cubes or spin the spinner for the different games.

Cover your answer space with your marker. If your partner is already on that number or word, you can bump your partner’s color and take their space.

If you bump your partner, he or she takes back the marker and has a chance to use it again. If you roll an answer that you have already covered, you can stack another marker on top of it.

Any space with two markers stacked on top of each other is locked and that space can’t be bumped. The player to use all of his or her markers first is the winner. All answers will not be covered.

Options:

Use checkers as markers and when a checker has a “king” that space is locked.

Use double sided counters.

Or, place game in a plastic sleeve and each player only needs one color dry erase marker. Players make a diagonal line through spaces landed on. When bumped, that player erases his or her line. Each player will need to tally ten turns on a separate piece of paper, and the color of marker can be counted during the game.

Frogs in the News

An Army of Frogs?
A group of birds is called a flock. A group of cattle is called a herd. A group of frogs is called an army!

Frogs Rain from Sky
Frogs have “rained” from the sky many times. Does it really rain frogs? How do they get in the sky? Strong winds can lift frogs in to the sky and “rain” them somewhere else. See the Library of Congress web site for more information. Find their mysteries of raining frogs information page. It can “rain” fish, as well.
